Is Injured

Sylvester Sager, aged 57 years, of Plaingrove, was almost instantly killed, and Nathan Offutt, aged 71, also of Plaingrove, died seven hours later in the New Castle hospital, as the result of a head-on collision between Offutt's car, and an oil truck belonging to the Mahoning Oil Company and driven by Harry L. Fry, of 509 Newell avenue, near the Fair Grounds on the Harlansburg road, Saturday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock.

Sager was dead when he reached the New Castle hospital, having received a broken neck. Offutt lived until 1:30 Sunday morning, dying from the effects of a fractured skull.

PA NEWS OBSERVES

Among the new detours in the district, listed on the Detour Bulletin of the Pennsylvania Department of Highways, is that between James-town, Pa., and Williamsfield, O., on the road to the Pymatuning Dam. The detour, 13.1 miles in length is over Ohio Route No. 7, and is im-proved.

To get tangled up in a line of new cars traveling the highways coupled together in twos (one driver to two automobiles) is no fun to the motorist who is out for a pleasure drive. It is as difficult to get by the long string of cars as it is to get a bee out of your hair. And just as dangerous.

New Castle's four United Presby-terian churches appropriately ob-served the same anniversary service on Sunday morning as other U. P. churches throughout the country were holding. The denomination this week, at its annual General Assembly conference in Pittsburgh, celebrates its 75th year.

Inspection of fields of corn in some parts of the county, indicates that the frost of last week oc-casioned a lot of damage. The dam-age seems to be in streaks, some farms escaping while others have fields of corn that are almost ruined.

Highland avenue is carrying plen-ty of traffic, in fact, more now than it has for some time. No doubt this is due to the improvement in the road from New Castle to New Wil-mington.

Electric automobiles were never numerous in the New Castle vicinity so usually create interest when seen downtown. One was parked on North Mercer street this morning. Its license plate was a little odd also —HG-1.

There is a lot of huey about

28th Division Men Leave After Two-Day Reunion

Event Is Concluded With Rodeo Staged Sunday Afternoon By
Troop F

ARE ADDRESSED BY COLONEL SHENKEL

After spending the greater part of two days in a happy reunion at Castle Beach, veterans of the 28th Division, A. E. F., left for their homes late Sunday afternoon, with the intention of holding a similar affair here again next year.

Assembling Saturday, the boys who had fought together in the conflict against the Central Powers of Europe 14 years ago, were taken to Castle Beach, where they spent the afternoon in playing muskball, pitching horse shoes, and enjoying themselves in talking over the old days of the World War.

There were many happy gatherings as men who had not seen each other in more than a decade, got together again, and recalled incidents which were still vivid in their memories.

Served By Troop
Later in the afternoon, they enjoyed a concert of martial music presented by the 11th Infantry bugle and drum corps from Pittsburgh.

Mess was prepared for them by Members of Troop F, under Mess Sergeant Don E. Florida, who also served the boys with their breakfast and noon meal on Sunday.

Assembling again in the evening,
a program of sports was carried out,
which included three three-round boxing bouts, featuring Yankee Pagley and Lew Storti; Dodge Augustine

Pennsy Calls 25 To Duty At Shop

Car Repair Work Increases
As Business Gains; Group
Working Today

An announcement which brightened the New Castle industrial horizon more cheerfully today was that which the Pennsylvania railroad issued as it called back a corps of 25 workers to its Seventh ward car repair shop.

Officials summoned the 25 to duty
this morning to aid the present working force in reconditioning freight cars for the increasing rail traffic on the Erie & Ashland division. It was the first such call issued in months.

At the office of Superintendent G.
S. West there were statistical signs evident that freight business was continuing to gain as summer draws near. The past month brought a decided upturn in freight tonnage, an upturn which exceeded records of the past two years. Increasing business brought the demand for more freight cars.

Rail officials stated that activity in the shop and enginehouse quarters has assumed a brisk tone within the past few weeks.

The 25 men who returned to duty
today were workers of the local district.

New Castle Concern Adds Fourth Plant

Another plant has been added to the New Castle Lime & Stone company, according to an announcement by Walter W. Duff, vice president and general manager, the new plant being located at Kittanning, Pa., one and a half miles north of the Allegheny river bridge. This makes four plants in the company's chain, the other three being at Ellwood City, Hillsville and Dunbar.
The new plant at Kittanning will be operated for the production of flux limestone, although later the company expects to get into the road stone game. Approximately 100 men will be employed at the Kittanning plant when it gets into full production, Mr. Duff said.

For some time the plant has been idle, but foreseeing developments that would make the plant a valuable asset, the New Castle Lime & Stone has taken it over, will equip it with modern machinery and get started in the near future.

CITY RELIEF WORK IS AT STANDSTILL

Relief work is at a standstill in the city of New Castle today according to Mayor Charles B. Mayne and councilman colleagues who convened formally in city hall this morning.

During council session Director of Streets Stanley Treser said: "We might report having called off all relief work. The are no men working today."

"I expect I had better make a report" said Mayor Mayne. He said he put forth a final effort Saturday morning to secure a decision from county commissioners.

Up To County
"I stayed in my office Saturday and at 12:15 p. m. they were of the same opinion—they had no money —and it is not now a question of legality," the mayor said.

"They collect taxes for this kind of work. We have carried on the work for a year and a half. As far as I see personally it is just a matter of them finding a way."

"There is no reason why they cannot carry this duty."

Director of Parks Louis Genkinger inquired of the mayor: "How much money do they get?"

"The poor levy is $280,000, from a 3 1/2 mills levy on about $80,000,000" responded the mayor. "The assistance from the state and national money runs over $700,000 in the county."

"About $60,000, a month, isn't it?"
asked Director of Streets Treser.

"Have any arrangements for another meeting been made?" inquired Finance Director Albert Hoyland.

"No. No arrangements have been made. It is up to the county commissioners. If the people bring pressure they will find a way. I understand there is no legal question now.
It's a question of money," the mayor replied.

greatly if he fails to make the scheduled night's anchorage. He dedicated his two weeks outing to pleasure, and was having the time of his life. He loves to sail. Where journeys end lies at nightfall doesn't interest him much.

Old, comfortable clothes are the order of the day about the 45-foot sea-going schooner. When it rains and blows, he dons yellow oilskins, turns his head to the sky, flexes his big shoulders and arms and enjoys it almost as much as fair weather.

A typical cruise scene was enacted in the Edgartown harbor where the Ambergjack II anchored for the night. She ripped in on the crest of a rising tide just ahead of a nasty squall, unexpected and unannounced. Her anchor clanked over the deck just as nightfall, and in twenty minutes all was shipshape. A driving rain accentuated the comfort and cheer aboard the trim boat.

bor, she swung and shifted to the wind as a nation's president in her small boat "toughed it" with his son and friends.

John Cutter, of Dedham, Mass., one of James Roosevelt's friends, cooked dinner, broiling sea bass presented by Dr. William McDonald of Marion, Mass. After dinner the president and his young but seasoned crew sat around the cabin and chatted for an hour or more, then turned in early.

The only difference between the visit of the president and that of any transient yachtsman was the presence of two navy patrol gigs which chugged in a circle around the Ambergjack. The presidential flag, signifying that Mr. Roosevelt was on board, came down at dark, and except for the navy craft the Ambergjack was just another boat in the harbor.

No Formality

That's the sort of thing the president really enjoys. There was no formality and no officials present. He was simply out for a sail.

Just outside the harbor two navy patrol gigs played watchdog. They were too big for same anchorage inside. They picked up the presidential party as it slipped out this morning, taking their usual positions just behind and on each side of the Ambergjack.

Out At Sea

At Sea With President Roosevelt, June 19.—The good ship Ambergjack II, Franklin D. Roosevelt, master, altered her course three hours out of Edgartown, Mass., today and headed for Nantucket, where she should put in during the day.

The trim little ship slipped out of Half Moon Harbor at Edgartown shortly after breakfast for the 80-mile run to Provincetown with the president at the wheel. Twenty miles or so along the way the skipper swung his helm over and ran for Nantucket, an unscheduled port of call.

At her best speed of about seven knots the Ambergjack would have reached Provincetown in about ten hours. But Mr. Roosevelt, in holiday mood, doesn't care much whether he makes the scheduled night's anchorage. These two weeks he has dedicated to rest and pleasure.

and Jimmy Brownfield; and Young Adanco and Walter West.

This was followed by vaudeville and moving pictures in the dancing pavilion.

Sunday morning, the boys were addressed by Lieut. Col. John Sherkel of Pittsburgh, who spoke of the old times they had spent together, and invited the men to attend the division reunion, which will be held at Mt. Gretna on August 5 and 6. He stated that a caravan will leave the western part of the state on the afternoon of August 4, and will be a rising tide just ahead of a nasty squall, unexpected and unannounced. Her anchor clanked over the deck just as nightfall, and in twenty minutes all was shipshape. A driving rain accentuated the comfort and cheer aboard the trim boat.

Ero Presides

He reviewed the honorable history of the 28th Division, which extends back to the Revolutionary War. It has been prominent in every conflict the United States has engaged in since then.

Assemblyman William Ero presided as chairman of the program.

Other addresses were made by R. L. Thompson and C. H. Fleming, of Pittsburgh, the latter of whom represented the Department Commander of the Society of the 28th Division, A. E. F.

General Chairman Frank T. Sargent and Commander A. L. Conn were introduced to the assembly, both of whom had worked untiringly to make the reunion the grand success it turned out to be.

Lieut. William Cosel, presented a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, calling on Major-General Edward C. Shannon to become the Republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania in 1934.

In conclusion, the boys voted to make the affair an annual one, and they will likely assemble here again next summer.

Rodeo Is Held

In the afternoon, a rodeo was staged by members of Troop F, which was attended by a crowd of approximately 2,000 people.

A thrilling exhibition was given by the troopers, led by Capt. Harvey Mitchell, Second Lieut. George Seely, and First Sergeant George Pollock.

Various daring riding stunts were staged, ending with mounted wrestling and a tug of war, followed by jumping events staged by the troop officers.

General William G. Price, and Colonel David J. Davis, who had been expected to attend, were unable to be present and sent their regrets, pressing business forcing them to remain at Harrisburg.

family heard the shot. William Clements first. He found the door closed but was able to open it and enter. He found Mr. McNeil lying on his back on the floor, where he had fallen after shooting himself. Making the wounded man, who was conscious and rational, as comfortable as possible, he directed others to call the police.

Officers Cecil Suber and Willis McMullen answered the call, arriving in a few minutes. They gave Mr. McNeil all possible aid, while they directed that an ambulance be sent for. He was removed to the New Castle hospital where an emergency operation was performed in an effort to locate the bullet and save his life if possible. Late this afternoon his condition was reported serious. Relatives in the city were notified and hurried to his bedside.

The officers in their search of his room found the revolver, also a note left, in which Mr. McNeil directed that a certain undertaker be called, indicating his determination to end his life.

AMERICAN DELEGATION NOT IN HARMONY

avowed them as coming from the delegation, and said:

"The technical advisers may have drafted their ideas to form a basis of discussion for the agenda, but no such proposition was submitted by the delegation."

Behind this is an interesting story of conflict between the American delegates and experts as to who is running the conference, and directing the American policy.

The delegates naturally think they are, and the experts patronizingly think they are.

No Decision Reached.

The tariff policy was discussed at numerous sessions of the delegates and experts aboard the liner President Roosevelt and also in London, without a definite decision being reached.

While the majority favored the principle of horizontal tariff reduction, it was thought best not to fix any definite percentage, leaving that point for oral discussion in the conference proper.

In this situation, Herbert Feis, whose title is chief economic adviser, and Henry Chalmers, the commerce department's tariff expert, were instructed to draw up a tentative draft of the American tariff suggestions for the agenda.

Suggested Basis.

The delegates did not intend it should be put forward as the "American program," but merely as a suggested basis for discussion.

It was completed Saturday morning and sent to the league secretariat without most of the delegates being aware of it as they were hurrying into morning coats and top hats for King George's garden party.

To make matters worse, Feis imparted the contents of the proposal to some newspapermen and the league secretariat later published it textually as the "American program."

When the delegates returned to London from the party at Windsor castle they were thrown into consternation, with the result that Senator Pittman decided to administer a public spanking to the experts.

Comments Heard.

The incident was most embarrassing for the American delegates, but it provided much amusement and wise-cracking in the London morning papers. The London Daily Telegraph came out with this headline:

"U. S. delegation world conference surprise."

"World conference bombshell," said the Daily Express. The staid Morning Post headline, "An American disavowal," and the News-Chronicle shouted, "U. S. delegation discord over tariff cut."

Resignation of Feis may be one result of the affair. Meanwhile, the document has been published and distributed. It probably will be withdrawn.

Gloom Thickened.

The incident has thickened the gloom concerning prospects of material tariff accomplishment by the conference. Inquiry among other delegations has revealed little sentiment favoring horizontal reductions unless on a basis unfavorable to the United States.

As a high tariff country, the other nations contend the horizontal cut should be at the ratio of 25 for the United States to 10 for themselves. It appears the horizontal proposition died aborning.

KIDNAPERS FREE ST. PAUL BREWER FOR BIG RANSOM

Sankey gang is believed to have collected the staggering sum of at least $172,000. For the release of Boettcher, who was abducted from in front of his garage in February, the Sankey ring was paid $60,000. Society paid a price of $12,000 for the release and safety of Bohn in March.

Details of the three most boldly enacted kidnappings since the tragic abduction of the Lindbergh baby reveal that similar tactics are always employed by the gang. The policy of snatching their victims, then telephoning the family forthwith to restrain from seeking aid from police and the subsequent interchange of notes was carried out in each of the three kidnappings.

truck who received injuries the driver and Joe Medved, L. R. McGahan of Erie, and Zearl Z. Fowler of 616 North Cedar street, escaping with but minor injuries which did not require medical attention.

On Left Side of Road

According to the story told Coroner Orville Potter and W. E. Stoops of the State Highway patrol, who investigated the accident, Offutt and Sager were enroute to New Castle in the former's car. They had reached the curving hill just this side of the Fair Grounds, as the oil truck, enroute in the opposite direction was descending the hill.

Fry stated that Offutt was driving on the left side of the road, apparently having been blinded by the glare of the sun on the roadway. When he realized that Offutt seemed ignorant of the fact that the truck was in front of him he averted sharply to the left to avoid a collision, and Offutt who seemed to see the truck at the same time, turned his car to the right, the two machines meeting head on.

After the collision, the oil truck continued up over a steep embankment for about ten feet before coming to a stop.

The group of youths on the oil truck were enroute to Harlansburg, where they expected to play baseball that evening.

Taken To Hospital

J. L. Cox, of 1006 Woodland avenue and the driver of a New York state car, picked up Sager, Offutt and young Medved and hurried to the hospital with them.

Lee Stewart, driving a truck for the Pennsylvania Power Company, who was following the Offutt car appeared on the scene shortly after the accident, and gave first aid treatment to the injured using the supplies in his first aid kit carried in the car.

Sager was pronounced dead when the hospital was reached.

The driver of the New York state machine, who brought one of the men to the hospital, did not reveal his name, and continued on his way after he had brought the victim to New Castle.

No action has been taken against Fry the driver of the truck which figured in the collision. Coroner Potter announced that an inquest will be held the latter part of this week into the circumstances surrounding the accident.

TARTLER-BIBERICH NUPTIALS OBSERVED

One of the most beautiful weddings of the season was observed Saturday at one o'clock in the Emanuel Evangelical church, when Miss Katherine Tartler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tartler, of Porter street, became the bride of Walter Biberich, of East Reynolds street.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. George Strehler, of Rochester, Pa., dressed in a pink organdie frock, sang "All for You" and "I Love You Truly." The bride party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Mrs. Fred Wedlewsky, who wore flowered gandy.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and made a charming picture in a fitted gown of white satin, with train, and a tulle veil, edged with lace, the cap being arranged with orange blossoms at either side. She carried a bouquet of white roses and valley lilies, with shower.

Her sister, Hildegard, who served as maid of honor, was lovely in a dress of powder blue, with pink taffeta sash, and carried a bouquet of mixed garden flowers, with roses.

John Gross, a cousin of the bride, served the groom as best man.

The single ring ceremony was used, Rev. Bernie G. Osterhouse, of the First Baptist church, of Ellwood City, performing the ceremony with Rev. George Knippel, pastor of the Emanuel Evangelical church, assisting, before an audience of friends and relatives numbering 400.

At the close of the ceremony, Mendelssohn's wedding march was played as the bridal party left, and a period of congratulations followed.

Dinner was served to relatives at the home of the bride's parents, following the nuptial ceremonies. The bride's table was centered with a beautiful wedding cake, topped with a bride and groom. Pink and white decorations were carried out in the decorations of the home.

Mrs. Biberich is a graduate of New Castle high school in the class of 1930, and has been employed as a stenographer in the commercial department of the Bell Telephone Co.

Mr. Biberich attended Colgate-Rochester Divinity school at Rochester, N. Y., for six years, and at present is enrolled at Westminster College, where he will teach in the fall. He is pastor of the Bethlehem Baptist congregation in New Castle and Ellwood City.

Following the dinner, they left for a short wedding trip, and will be at home to their friends in their newly-furnished home at 806 Porter street, on Tuesday.

Guests were present from Ellwood City, Rochester, Pa., Cleveland, O., and Chicago, Ill.

Twins Have Birthday
Frank Foster of Boston avenue, and John Foster of Grant City, twin brothers, were 63 years of age on last Thursday and in honor of their joint birthday, Mrs. Harry Dean of Grant City, entertained at a chicken dinner in their honor. Seasonable flowers and pink and white colors were used in the decorative plan for the affair. The honor guests were the recipients of a number of gifts. The evening was spent in a pleasant social manner.

Covers were laid for ten and guest list included Mr. and Mrs. John Foster, Mrs. J. A. McConnell, Samuel White and Evelyn McCracken.

THIRTY YEARS' WAR

IN THE course of a Commencement Day address at Swarthmore College Newton D. Baker, secretary of war during the World War, referred to that world engagement as the second "Thirty Years' War."

He said he had borrowed the expression from General Tasker H. Bliss, who, when asked during the war how long it would last, said "Thirty years," and then explained that he included in this period the post-war years of bitterness, hatreds and irrationalities engendered by the fighting. These, he believed, would live as long as the generation responsible for the war.

That leaves 11 more years for the world to forget and forgive, for General Bliss was not making a wild guess. He was up on his history of war and no one knows human nature better than a soldier.

If General Bliss erred at all, it was on the near side. Fifteen years have elapsed since the Versailles treaty and Europe is still carrying chips on several shoulders and showing no signs of either forgetting or forgiving. The European nations talk peace and sign peace pacts, but always to the accompaniment of war rumors and war threats.

It has been suggested time and again that had the Versailles treaty been an instrument for peace instead of for vengeance world peace would now be a fact.

FEWER DEADBEATS

Records of 306 representative retail establishments in 25 scattered cities show less fraudulent buying now than at the peak of the prosperity period, no increase in bad check passing and surprisingly little increase in the volume of bad debts.

Partly responsible for this favorable situation is the increased vigilance of credit men as regards new accounts and the acceptance of checks. But there is some truth in the statement that prosperous times demand more caution than hard times.

Among certain classes of people the temptation to acquire articles by illegal means seems to be stronger when only luxuries are beyond their reach than when they are in real want. It is one of those paradoxes none can explain. Shoplifting is a problem always aggravated by periods of great prosperity, because the urge to keep up with the Joneses is irresistible. When everybody is retrenching and economizing that urge is not present.

Professional dead beats are to be found in every community, but their number is not augmented by adversity. There are more slow accounts on the books of most retailers today than there were in 1929, but these are not bad accounts. The return to normal employment will speedily balance them.

TOO MUCH TALKING

We believe there will be many to agree that the white house has too many spokesmen.

The spokesmen are performing over the radio and through syndicated articles. Even though they may disclaim any intention of speaking for the president, their very close association with the executive is likely to cause the impression among the public that they are reflecting Mr. Roosevelt's views.

The person the country wishes to hear is not Colonel Howe, is not Professor Moley, but President Roosevelt. Too much chatter from the white house spokesmen serves merely to lessen the effect of any remarks which the president may personally deliver himself. At the moment, the country is being talked to death.

What Mr. Roosevelt thinks concerning the problems now facing the United States and the world carries great interest. The few speeches made by the president since he took office supply ample evidence of this. Either when speaking directly to a visible audience or when broadcasting his views over the radio, his words are eagerly listened to.

There is not the same interest in what any of his professorial advisers may have to say except as the belief exists that they are speaking the thoughts of Mr. Roosevelt. Even were they admittedly doing this, their words would not hold the same attraction for the public as would words spoken directly by the president. When they deny that they are speaking for him, there is very little interest in what they have to say. They simply add confusion to the public mind.

Unless the president calls a halt on this practice, it is likely to have an unfavorable effect upon his influence and prestige. There is danger even that his motives in permitting it to continue may be questioned. If his advisers don't themselves recognize the impropriety of their course, the president should take steps to impress it upon them.

HOME RELIEF NEAR

The prediction in government sources that the agencies to administer the homeowners' relief act, signed Tuesday by the president, will be in full operation within a month will lift a burden from the minds of thousands of owners facing the threat of mortgage foreclosure.

The new law will be financed by the Home Owners' Loan corporation, a banking institution with $2,000,000,000 behind it, created for this purpose. Branches will be established throughout the country to make its facilities conveniently available to those in need of its services.

Only owners of homes which are appraised at $20,000 or less will be entitled to the advantages of the act. It has been found, however, that 90 per cent of mortgaged homes come within this classification, which leaves only a small number unprotected.

The procedure to be followed in getting relief is simple. The owner of a mortgaged home facing foreclosure applies to the nearest branch of the loan corporation. On his showing that the mortgage and back taxes do not amount to more than 80 per cent of the property's value, the bank will trade 4 per cent government bonds for the mortgage and allow the owner 15 years to pay off the latter at 5 per cent. In event the mortgage holder refuse the bonds, the government will lend the owner in cash 40 per cent of the appraised value of his property and repayment of this at 6 per cent may be spread over 15 years.

The home owner who has no mortgage on his property but who needs money for back taxes can obtain a loan for this purpose if the taxes do not total more than 40 percent of the appraised value of the property, the government taking a first mortgage as security.

Operation of the law promises to prove among the most beneficial of the relief measures enacted by congress. The first branch of the corporation is expected to be opened within a week, with establishment of the others being carried on as rapidly as possible.

A Gandhi fast isn't news any more.

THE WORST CRIME

The worst crime is being Small. It is nagging and fussing at those you love and declining to let them love you.

It is picking on them for little causes, standing between them and an easier life.

A woman can stand anything, stand pain, stand poverty, stand grief, and disappointment. She can smile or be philosophical. At least, she can be brave if she is given half a chance. But she cannot endure being fussed at. That is the bloom and the perfume from life, shrivels it to a dry, hard knot of misery.

A man can endure a plenty, too. If he has failed if he has been a fool, if he allowed some weakness to wreck his life, still he can stand straight and try again, or at least endure, if he is not made to feel small and worthless. If he is nagged at, the heart goes out of him. The strength he must have when he is away from home, which must grow in that home, falls away from him and his life is a waste and a desolation.

A child will be happy if it has half a chance. But if there is a small individual above it, in control, fussing and fuming at small things—then the child grows into himself, becomes sullen and secretive—and knows no real joy.

Smallness is what does it. Smallness that never knows the difference between the important and the insignificant. Smallness that catches at little imperfections and lets the great qualities go.

Smallness that is blind and itching. Smallness that cannot keep its hands away or its tongue silent and cannot keep the disapproval out of its sullen face. Smallness is the worst sin because it is a laceration of the human spirit, struggling for freedom and strength. Smallness is fearful envy refusing to grow large and denying that privilege to its fellows.

An English temperance enthusiast was concluding his address. "Friends," he said, "have lived here all my life. In this town there are fifty public houses, and I am proud to say that I have never been in one of them."

From the back of the hall came the question, "And which one is that?"

JOE SORRY RICHARDS IS LEAVING

Coaltown Penna. June 16, 1933.

Fred Rents, News Company. As regards where I saw in your paper on the front page today some remarks where you expose the facts as regards the man who owns your Water Company going to move himself to Chattanooga, Tennessee. I right away got myself busy and came home from Salt Creek where I been since the terrible massacre which was had by the Republican party last November.

I done so Fred on account him & me has been pretty close together in a good many deals where the public was done good & it got me pretty badly scared as regards to how I could possibly run my business here & him in Chattanooga, Tennessee.

So when I come home I promptly & without delay went to see him in regards to the same & he says to me as follows & to wit. Joe he says in spite of the fact that I never claimed or admitted any connection with you and in spite of the further fact that you have on many occasions seriously embarrassed very dear friends of mine with your crude shafts of satire and so forth still I have always thought a good deal of you because you have provided a means of relaxation and an outlet so to speak for surplus steam.

& he says further Joe because of the high although veiled regard which I have for you I would be glad to have you near me always & so if you can close out your business here in a hurry I will take you along with me & find you a place where you can locate close to your hearts desire which is another name for your Tennessee Bubble.

& so Fred to make a short story still shorter I took him up on his proposition & right away begun to pack up my goods especially the stuff in my garage basement which I understand can be used to good advantage in Tennessee when the moon shines through the clouds on Lookout Mountain.

Also as regards your paper & yourself Fred I will write articles to the same from time to time when the spirits is working right & when your paper seems to need some essays of high moral tone.

Give my regards to Mrs. Fred & to Mrs. Jake & what ever you do

Fred take good care of Jake on account he will no longer have my close & nefarious supervision. Believe me Fred I think a lot of Jake.

I wish I would have time & space also to mention to you the names of the friends which have been so good to me around your paper from the editor down to the printers devil etcetera & to do the same would take a terrible lot of space especially if I was to try & write some of the things which is just now making my throat choke up.

So I will just say that they have all been fine to me & good luck to them all.

Au revoir

TODAY'S STORYTELLER. Roy Simpson, Negro laborer, was putting in his first day with a construction gang, whose foreman was known for getting the maximum amount of labor out of his men. Simpson was helping in the task of moving the right of way, and all day long he carried heavy timbers and ties until at the close of the day he was tired out completely. Quitting time came.

Before he went home he approached the boss and said: "Mister, are you sure you got me down on the pay roll?" The foreman looked over the list of names he held.

"Yes," he said finally, "here you are—Simpson—Roy Simpson."

Desire For Budget Balance Governs Pension Sentiment

Support For President Roosevelt Is Coupled With Belief That Service Disability Cases Should Have Sole Consideration

Dispute between President Roosevelt and members of congress on the scope of financial relief for veterans discloses a widespread conviction that it is necessary to balance the federal budget, and that ex-service men, as well as all other citizens, would suffer if that were not the aim of the government. Some argue that if relief were confined to legitimate cases of war-service disability, there would be ample funds to take care of them.

"It will be quite impossible," advises the RICHMOND NEWS-LEADER, "even by the most Spartan economies, to balance the budget without the proposed economies. The loss of confidence that would follow failure in this would cost the country far more than the amount of increase estimated." The ST. JOSEPH GAZETTE feels that "the country is unalterably opposed to grants of public money at a time when economy is government's greatest problem." The SAN JOSE MERCURY HERALD thinks that "to unbalance the president's budget at the end of the session would disrupt his whole program," and the NORFOLK VIRGINIAN-PILOT charges that the opposition to the executive "has stabbed at the heart of the only real hope of pension reform that has been or will be offered." That per-voiced belief that any mistakes made might be made in dealing with individual veterans would be corrected.

"If congress limits the president in his economy work," advises the LINCOLN STATE JOURNAL, "then it will have the responsibility for producing more revenue and that means new and heavier taxes." Deploring that "there is every assurance that the president purposes just and fair treatment for the veterans, each on merit," the PORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM contends that "the American public—taxpayers at the head of the list—is entitled to the same treatment." The OSEKOSH DAILY NORTHWESTERN holds that "to saddle another tax load on the country as a whole is not going to make the reactions happy ones for the federal lawmakers." The HARTFORD TIMES urges that "if congress will not support the president in his efforts to balance the budget, then the nation should make it unmistakably clear that the chief executive and not congress has general support."

The ASBURY PARK EVENING PRESS avers that "the average citizen is the forgotten man in Washington, so long as an organized minority opposes his interests," and asks: "Will the nation continue paying more than it can afford to veterans, and wreck its credit and overtax its business, or will the ex-soldiers, most of whom are reaffirming their patriotism by expressing a willingness to do so, accept a cut sufficiently large to balance the budget?" The resulting increase in taxes is emphasized also by the CLEVELAND NEWS-PRESS, declaring that "the American taxpayer should be better organized and much more vocal." The CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR feels that "if he were as persistent as the tax-spending groups, he might have a chance."

"If congress," in the opinion of the ROANOKE WORLD-NEWS, "decides that the veterans of America's wars shall be paid for the time they serve until they die, as seems to be the disposition, it would appear that, along with many other traditions which veterans' demands have thrown into the trash heap, must go that of depending upon patriotism, to provide volunteer armies in time of need, and taking up its stand the European plan of professional armies, under which every man serves his time in uniform and henceforth becomes a reserve soldier, minus pension. The professional army is a good thing for belligerents; a bad thing for peace lovers, but when America must spend more for soldiers that were than any heavily armed powers elsewhere, to spend for soldiers that were and are, the limit of financial support appears well passed, and the country either must give up any thought of patriotic army support when needed, and provide a professional arm-c force of much greater size than now exists, or turn definitely and strictly pacifist."

"The time for a barrage of protests against unwarranted extravagance on the part of congress," maintains the OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES, while the effect on business is emphasized by the PROVIDENCE BULLETIN, with the conclusion that "the revolt has tended to revive the nervousness which acts like a drain upon confidence." The SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN argues that "the annoying and disquieting feature of the demoralization of congress is its lack of stability in a last-minute attempt to reverse a policy which it had overwhelmingly approved less than three months ago with a nation's plaudits in its ears."

The issue between the president and supporters of veterans in congress has been clearly drawn; the country will be the umpire," says the WASHINGTON EVENING STAR. With favorable comment on "veterans suffering from direct service-connected disability" the BALTIMORE SUN feels that "the very necessities of this group ought to make it evident that a government in financial difficulties cannot go on pouring out money for the support of other groups whose claims are not traceable to military service." The MORGANTOWN DOMINION-NEWS asserts: "A major purpose of the economy program has been to free the pension rolls of those favored by inexcusable legal presumptions and indefensible legislation awarding pensions to men who came from the wars able bodied, as to leave enough money in the treasury properly to discharge the nation's obligations to those who suffered from their war experience."

That disabilities received in service should be only the basis for compensation is the belief of the HANOVER GAZETTE and the OAKLAND TRIBUNE, and the SANTA MONICA OUTLOOK holds that pensions should not be paid for physical defects that did not develop for five years or more after the war." The BOISE IDAHO STATESMAN charges congress with a breach of faith. The CHARLESTON (S. C.) EVENING POST fears that "the great body of civil servants of the government may be the next to bite a huge chunk out of the economy loaf."

Presenting a different point of view in the country-wide discussion of the issues involved in this dispute, the AKRON BEACON JOURNAL says: "The fact is that there has been more than the appearance of being balanced. This is done by fancy bookkeeping which separates purely operating costs from so-called capital and debt service charges. The latter embrace the enormous outlay for public works, farm relief, home and farm loan bills, and the emergency expenditures which will be set up under the industrial recovery bill, to be financed largely by 'prosperity' loans. Blaming the soldiers for putting the budget out of kilter, and alarming the country with threats of added taxation, is an affront to public intelligence and unworthy of an administration which hitherto has been shooting pretty square, and for that reason inspiring public confidence."

Poor troubled men, perplexed and fretted much. Build governments their peace to guarantee: They spoil the things their blundering fingers touch. Striving for goals they can but dimly see. Beyond their power great promises they make. And sorrow follows every failing plan. But lilacs never falter here or there. They always keep their promises to man.

Beside my door a bank of lilacs now In needle point of purple stands arrayed. Though cold the spring has seemed to me, somehow The promised dividends are being paid. The air is sweet with fragrance once again. Now to the bloom comes back the hungry bee—A glow of beauty lights my window pane—My lilac bank has kept its pledge to me.

STOP COMPLAINING

Don't talk so much about your ailments. True, you have more than most folk and fewer than many.

Middle age has its afflictions, its impaired strength and certain discomforts to be borne. But just because you have heard others complain of aches and pains is not an indication that you must have the same.

Neither is it an indication that a person is free from pain because he refrains from speaking of it.

Often when a person dies unexpectedly, it is found that for years that one endured pain, uncomplainingly, as a result of a serious physical condition.

Usually such persons realize that their lives may be snuffed out without any warning.

Yet they go on year after year without complaint. While you, with a minor ailment, bore folk frequently with details, don't be so persistent in trying to gain sympathy.

Carry your load, others are doing as much. It may seem a bit inhuman to say that people are tired of your whining but it is a fact, nevertheless.

A linotype with a Puritan strain informs us: "Pennsylvania's legislature has passed a bill making it awful to play baseball on Sunday."

Second Forest Unit Training At Camp

Letter From Boys Says Group
At Fort Washington Awaits Forest Trip

Lawrence county's second contingent of the "forest army," following close in the footsteps of New Castle's first 100 foresters, were enjoying life today in training at Fort Washington, Md., hopeful of entering within a few days for a mountain site where they will wrestle with timber for six months.

A letter from six of the boys in the second group was received by The News today. It carried a brief account of the delegation's experiences.

After their training period expires, the boys will go to a forest camp. The first group was assigned to a scenic Allegheny mountain retreat in the vicinity of Williamsport.

There has been an announcement as to which forest the second group will be ordered. The announcement is expected soon.

Tents at Fort Washington, the letter said, are named by the boys themselves. While the daytime is occupied by camp routine, nighttime brings many an enjoyable hour for the boys. Dancing, singing, shows and all are included in their entertainment. The boys, however, crave letters and ask for more.

The letter today came from six grouped in the "pie-rat" tent, including Jack Hoover, Stanley Chmura, Frank Bistogy, Henry Ryder, Harold Strong and George Winner. They gave as their address: Company 1356, C. C. O. (White) Fort Washington, Md.

Ill Health Cause Of Suicide Act

Harry H. Zeigler Is Found Dead At His Home On Sunday

ELLWOOD CITY, June 19.—Harry H. Zeigler, aged 61, died instantly at his home at 216 Spring avenue between 11 a. m. and 12 o'clock Sunday, after sending a bullet through his forehead. Despondency due to ill health is believed to have caused the act.

The incident was quite a shock to relatives, friends and neighbors. Only in the morning Mr. Zeigler was preparing to go to church with his wife and nothing was apparently wrong with him. Just before church time he changed his mind and complained of not feeling well and remained at home alone.

After returning home from church and failing to find her husband in his customary places, Mrs. Zeigler instituted a search for him. She came to the third floor of their home and found her husband prostrate in a pool of blood. Fearing that Mr. Zeigler had fallen and hurt himself or perhaps cut himself with a razor, she immediately called Dr. C. M. Iseman.

It was Dr. Iseman who found the revolver near the prostrate man's side and the bullet hole in his forehead and pronounced him dead. County Coroner Orville Potter of New Castle was called and after making an investigation and a few inquiries, rendered a verdict of suicide. Mrs. Zeigler stated that she had never known firearms to be in her home and where her husband had acquired the revolver was beyond her knowledge.

Mr. Zeigler had been in ill health for over a year and it was only last summer that he received a broken leg upon falling from a cherry tree.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Ella Zeigler, the deceased leaves one son, Carl E.; two brothers, Ferd and John Zeigler, all of this city two sisters, Mrs. Sara Liebendorfer of this city, and Mrs. John Curry of New Castle.

A private funeral service will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 from the late home on Spring avenue with the Rev. W. E. Minter, pastor of the local U. P. church, officiating. The home will be open to friends at 10:30 tomorrow. Interment will be made in the Locust Grove cemetery.

Reads News In Bombing Plane 8,000 Feet In Air

In a letter to Fred L. Rentz, president of The News, George Loudon, New Castle boy who is stationed at Langley Field, Va., tells about reading the news from home, while soaring along in an army bombing plane, more than a mile in the air.

His attention was attracted by the reminder which has been carried recently in The News to vacationists, telling them not to forget their copy of The News while away from home, as there is no better way of keeping in touch with things than that, and Loudon thoroughly agrees.

He agrees that The News is better than a hundred letters from home, and goes it one better, by stating that it is better than two or three times that number.

His letter follows:

Langley Field, Virginia.
June 15th, 1933.

Mr. Fred Rentz,
% New Castle News,
New Castle, Penna.
My Dear Mr. Rentz:

EXTRA EXTRA EXTRA. THE NEW CASTLE NEWS SOARS UPWARD.

Keeping abreast with the upward trend of the stock market the past few weeks. The New Castle News today soared to new heights. The attached clipping along with other items of interest in Monday's paper were read this morning by your undersigned constant reader, aboard a U. S. Army bombing plane about 8,000 feet above the terra firma of "Ole Virginia", down where the South begins.

Having been away from New Castle the past six years I can appreciate the truth of the attached clipping. The News does not give the personal touch of a letter from a loved one but it gives more detailed news than can be received in two or three times one hundred letters.

The weather down here is fine only it was a little chilly yesterday and again today after the hot spell of last week. I can assure it is cold 8,000 above the ground this morning. We were up on a bombing mission for a couple of hours. It was too cold to sleep so those of us in the fuselage read a copy of last Monday's News which I had in my pocket. It helped to pass the time considerably. At some future period when I have more time at my leisure I shall drop you a letter telling all about the people, their customs and the kind of a country they live in here in Virginia. I am sure that it will be interesting as the people here differ somewhat from Pennsylvania. The younger generation is growing up modern but some of the older generation can't tolerate a "d— Yankee." Down here if a boy from the North meets a girl he first finds out where she lives then some night after dark he measures all the fences in the immediate vicinity of her home. The next day he tries a running high jump and if he can jump the height of the highest fence, he calls that evening on the young lady and her parents. If the fence is too high he promptly forgets all about the girl.

Upon calling on the old folks and on their learning of his Northern ancestry one of two things is bound to happen.

"The Governor," "Colonel" or what ever he happens to be starts a foot race. If the boy succeeds in reaching the fence and has not miscalculated on his measurements, he generally gets away safe.

The alternate is for the "Colonel" to get the young man in the corner and fight the Civil War all over again.

I happen to be unlucky enough to run up against the latter type of prospective father-in-law and in five years time my courtship has gotten as far as the engagement stage. You can't wage a war and court at the same time. General Grant and I have captured Richmond so many times that I know the exact number of steps taken by the Union soldiers and exact number of shots fired to win the battle.

This gross exaggeration is a great injustice to the Southern people of today. It is not true and was only written to fill space. Though the older generation here do remember the Civil War more than we of the North yet it is not as bad as I have pictured it. The past few years find them beginning to forget and forgive and they now welcome a Northernerner almost as readily as we of the North welcome them. They are a hard people to become acquainted with but I really believe that once they become a friend, their friendship is more lasting than that of a lot of us Northerners.

Must close now. Express my best wishes to Mr. Orth and Mr. Burton and any of the faculty of Senior or Ben Franklin Jr. High Schools that you should chance to meet.

Sincerely,
GEORGE LOUDON,
33rd Pursuit Squadron
Langley Field, Virginia.

Urge Training Of Youths For Trade Revival

Few Have Been Taught Trades During Depression; Fear Shortage

A study completed by the Bureau of Employment at Harrisburg from information compiled by district officers of the state employment bureau, discloses that few men have been trained in any industrial trade during the past four years.

Superintendent R. L. Meermans of the local state employment office was so informed by A. W. Motley, director of the bureau, today.

Mr. Motley didn't fail to add that a shortage of skilled men will in all probability develop when industry returns to normal.

In the year preceding 1929, industry maintained apprentice classes for the training of young men in trades such as boilermaking, patternmaking, toolmaking, molding and other skilled mechanical lines. During 1930, and since that time, practically all industrial plants were forced to discontinue their apprentice training. The practice of retaining the older men who were married and releasing the younger men, meant that thousands of young men with experience of six months or a year have not since had a chance to complete their training. Few unemployed men under 25 years, Mr. Motley believes, are thoroughly experienced in any particular trade.

The state office, according to word received here, is urging employers to resume the training of men for industrial trades.

Negroes Rob Man At Point Of Gun

Robert Buxton Is Presenting Match To One, When Covered By Gun

Robert Buxton, 1001 Croton avenue, was the victim of two negro holdup men traveling in a Chrysler Sedan bearing an Ohio license, Sunday morning about three o'clock, while walking along East Main street.

According to Buxton who arrived at the police station within a few minutes after the holdup, he was walking along East Main street, as the car went past him to Crawford avenue and turned around.

As he passed the car, one of the occupants, asked Buxton for a match. He went out to the car to present a match to the man, a negro, and as he was reaching the match to this man, the other shoved a gun out the window at him.

While the one negro searched him and took his money, $4 in all, the other kept him under cover of the gun. They drove out Crawford avenue toward Croton avenue, after robbing him.

The police were unable to locate the car or the two negroes.

Former Teachers Will Be Present At Alumni Event

Making Last Minute Efforts To Get Every Former Student Out Thursday

Thursday evening, June 22, will be a gala occasion in the history of New Castle high school and its alumni. There has been planned an evening's program that will have something of interest for every person attending the affair, which will be held in the Cathedral.

It will open with a dinner at 6:30 o'clock, which will be followed by an entertainment in the Cathedral auditorium and the evening will be brought to a close with a dance, for which an excellent orchestra has been provided.

Many former teachers as well as many former pupils, both from here and from many points, some at quite a distance from the city, will be present and participate in the affair. Among those expected will be Prof. George A. Dickson of Oceanside, Cal., former principal of the high school and also former superintendent of the city schools, and Mrs. Dickson, who are on a visit here. He is anxious to meet as many of his former students as possible, and this will be an opportunity for those who attended school in his time to meet with him and recall the happy incidents of other days.

Chairmen have been appointed for various groups of classes or individual classes, together with assistants, and they are to get in touch with members of the classes in their respective groups. Any person desiring to attend may, however, call their chairman, where they have not yet been approached, and make their reservations.

The tickets for all features of the evening are 75 cents and it is desired to have all dinner reservations by Wednesday evening.

My skin is clearer, too, thanks to LIFEBOUY. A way with the old idea that you have to buy costly "complexion soaps" to keep your skin lovely! Tens of thousands of women have discovered that no other soap ever kept their complexions so fresh and radiant as Lifebuoy. Its bland, creamy lather penetrates pores, gets out every speck of grime-in dirt, leaves the skin exquisite. Pores are free to breathe; dullness gives place to glowing health. Notice Lifebuoy's pleasant, hygienic scent that vanishes as you rinse. It tells you Lifebuoy lather purifies, banishes "B.O." (body odor), brings complexion beauty.

MCBRIDE SEES DELAY IN REPEAL ACTION

Many States Will Not Act This Year

Anti-Saloon League Head Issues Call To Dry Forces Of Nation

"WET" STATES ARE VOTING EARLIEST

By ARTHUR C. WIMMER
Special Washington Correspondent
New Castle News
WASHINGTON, June 19.—In a final effort to rally the confidence of prohibition forces, F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, today issued a broad-cast designed to present proof that "the dries can and should hold more than the number of states necessary to prevent repeal of the 18th amendment."

Mr. McBride argued there are 11 states in which there is no chance for a repeal vote this year. He listed these as Georgia, Kansas and North Dakota "which have definitely refused to provide for elections," Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi and Virginia "with no legislative sessions until 1934," two states, Colorado and Oklahoma, in which "convention bills have been vetoed by the governor," and South Dakota and Nebraska "in which elections will not come until November, 1934."

Go Over To 1934.
Failure of 13 states to ratify the repeal amendment would be sufficient to prevent repeal. Hence, Mr. McBride contends, by holding only two states in which repeal may be considered this year, the repeal contest is certain to go over into 1934.

"In 1934," declared Mr. McBride, "conditions and circumstances are certain to be more favorable to the dry side than they have been up to the present time. The dries could win in 1934."

"The wets not only brought on the elections as quickly as possible to take advantage of discontent caused by the economic situation, but they also fixed the dates for elections in the wettest states first. By 1934, however, the ground will have definitely shifted to dry territory and many other vitally important changes may be expected to have taken place."

Better Organized.
"The dries will be much better organized than was possible in the short time preceding the elections already held. A far larger proportion of dries will vote than has been the case in states where they believed there was no chance to win. Party pressure to get out the wet vote will not be as effective after political appointments have been made. Beer lawlessness in wet states, lawless importation of beer into dry states and actual proof that beer intensifies rather than diminishes the evils of the liquor traffic, will arouse sentiment against repeal."

Mr. McBride expressed the belief that the dries will be easily able to win two of the states in which the repeal issue may be voted on this year. He said that only one of the 11 states which have already voted repeal could have been considered dry, while 29 of the 37 states still to vote were under state-wide prohibition when the 18th amendment was adopted.

One State Really Lost.
Mr. McBride listed Indiana as the only one of the 11 states already pledged to repeal "which could have been considered dry." Of the 11, he pointed, Wisconsin, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New York, Delaware and Illinois were wet when national prohibition was adopted; Michigan voted wet last December, and Nevada in 1926 and Wyoming in 1932 voted wet in advisory referendum on the 18th amendment. Hence, according to Mr. McBride, losses of the dries on the repeal issue to date have been confined to one state—Indiana.

Since only six wet states are included in the number for which election dates have been definitely fixed for 1933—Connecticut, California, Vermont, Maryland, Minnesota and Pennsylvania—the dries should be able to hold many more than the necessary two, Mr. McBride argued. He ruled that "these facts indicate that repeal will be roundly repulsed if the dries make the best fight possible under the circumstances to get the facts to the people and the dry vote into the ballot box."

Coal Operators Are Waiting For New Regulations

Reports Of Rift Between Operators And Government Officials Scooped

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, June 19.—Reports of a rift between the Pittsburgh Coal company and government officials because of the national industry recovery bill were scooped today by J. D. A. Morrow, president of Pittsburgh Coal.

Pledging "full cooperation" to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator under the new bill, Morrow said: "All we are waiting for is to find out what the gentleman wants, and then we'll do our best to give it to him."

He added:
"Several attempts have been made to form codes in the industry before it was known just what regulations the government wanted. We have been waiting until the law was passed, until it was definitely established just what was wanted, before going ahead in a code."

Says Beer Law Should Undergo Needed Change

Assistant U. S. District Attorney Says Courts Should Control Beer

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, June 19.—Hastily prepared and rushed through to passage, the Pennsylvania beer control law "obviously must be changed at the next session of the legislature."

This statement was recorded today by Raymond D. Evans, Assistant U. S. District Attorney, who addressed a meeting of the newly organized Pennsylvania beer and wine dealers association.

Evans declared that monopoly, law violations and greed for money were direct causes for enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment and warned distributors and retailers that "improper observance of the beer law" would prevent repeal of the amendment.

As for the state control bill, Evans said many county treasurers "passed the buck" to district attorneys in interpreting the bill, while others "interpreted the bill to suit themselves."

He concluded:
"The public will never be satisfied until the control is put in the hands of the courts, a body which they respect."

NOME, Alaska, June 19.—Arctic fog today balked the search for Jimmy Mattern, American round-the-world flier, missing since he hopped off from Khabarovsk, Siberia, Wednesday in an effort to fly the hazardous 2400 mile route to Nome.

Acting under orders from Washington, United States Naval vessels prepared to search isolated islands in the Bering Sea for some trace of the missing aviator as soon as weather conditions would permit.

Islands of the Aleutian chain are without communication except for visits from trading ships. Veteran Alaskan aviators pointed out that many aviators had made forced landings on the islands and had remained unreported for days.

PIRATES WHIP BRAVES TWICE

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 19.—Purchase of Simmons, Dykes and Hays from the Athletics has made the Chicago White Sox a money-making club as well as a pennant contender. The Sox climaxed their bid for the popularity that used to be the Cubs' when their double bill with the Yankees at Comiskey Park yesterday attracted 53,398 fans, the largest baseball crowd in Chicago's history.

Charley Ruffing won his own game for New York in the opener, 6 to 4, driving in the deciding run with a double in the ninth. In the nightcap Don Brennan blew up in the ninth inning with victory in sight. Swanson's single tied the score and the Sox won out in the tenth and the Sox won out in the tenth and the Sox won out in the tenth.

Ruth Has Flu
Babe Ruth developed a touch of the flu and had to retire. He will be out of the game for several days. Behind a barrage of 15 Washington hits, Gen. Alvin Crowder subdued St. Louis 14 to 1, but Bumps Hadley hurled the Browns to a 3 to 2 victory in the nightcap thanks to homers by Campbell and West.

The Browns climbed out of the cellar, passing the Red Sox, who were whitewashed twice by Hildebrand and Harder of Cleveland, 7 to 0 and 4 to 0. Hildebrand held Boston to three hits and chalked up his tenth victory and fifth shutout of the year.

Tigers Win Two
Vic Sorrell and Lynwood Rowe hurled Detroit to a double win over the Athletics, 3 to 2 and 11 to 7. In the opener Jimmy Foxx walloped his 15th homer, tying Lou Gehrig for the lead in the home run derby. Six errors ruined the A's in the nightcap.

"Tarzan" Parmelee, who had been knocked out of the box in his last six starts, kept the New York Giants at the front of the National league parade by blanking the Cubs 2 to 0. Lon Warneke held the Giants to four hits but lost out in the seventh when Terry singled, Verges doubled and Warneke himself uncorked a wild pitch.

"Dizzy" Dean held Cincinnati to four hits and clouted a homer and two singles himself as the Cardinals collected 18 hits to swamp the Reds 13 to 1. He essayed a hero's role as a relief pitcher in the second game, only to be nicked for the run that gave the Reds a 6 to 5 triumph. The venerable Ed Rixey went the route for Cincinnati.

Pirates Win Two
Sam Leslie, new first baseman, won another game for Brooklyn. His single with the bases full drove in two runs as the Jumbo Jim Elliott held Brooklyn to five hits but Ray Bengie, former Phil, hung up his fourth straight victory for the Dodgers.

Pittsburgh got back into the race by downing the Braves twice, 5 to 3 and 4 to 3, to start their eastern invasion. Meine and French pitched. Berger's homer in the opener gave him the lead in the National league home run derby.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Central Press Association

TO KEEP EYE ON BALL PICK OUT SPOT ON IT THAT WILL HOLD YOUR ATTENTION THROUGHOUT SWING

To keep eye on ball pick out spot on it that will hold your attention throughout swing.

ALEX MORRISON says:
You can't hit a good shot unless you keep your mind on the ball all the time you're swinging.

Most players stare at the ball and their minds are a thousand miles away, anywhere but on the business at hand, which is to strike the ball at a certain spot.

It is not enough simply to hit the ball with the clubhead, you must have the clubface land on a particular part of the cover.

That part is generally on the back side and lower part of the ball. There is generally some mark, a scratch, or bit of dirt on the cover of the ball near the point you should strike.

Fix your eyes on this spot and give it all your attention as you prepare for your swing.

Next: Starting Swing Back.

COTTON JUMPS
DOLLAR A BALE

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, June 19.—With inflationary sentiment fanned to fever heights again by President Roosevelt's ban on immediate stabilization of the dollar, the stock market resumed its boom pace today under an avalanche of buying which swamped the high speed ticker.

The principal stimulus was provided by a new crash in the dollar. Sterling soared nearly 8 cents, crossing $4.14 against a low a few days ago of $4.02, while other foreign currencies soared.

Stocks opened spectacularly higher, gains running to more than 3 points, and these were quickly extended to 5 points and more. Huge blocks succeeded each other on the tape and the ticker fell 8 minutes behind.

Commodities surged ahead with stocks. Cotton jumped $1 a bale and wheat 2 cents a bushel. Rubber rose sensationally and other staples scored substantial gains. Speculative bonds were buoyant in the bond market while curb and bank stocks were strong.

Wall Street's nervousness which resulted from last week's drastic shakeout was dispelled by the week-end developments and the administration's strong stand against stabilization of currencies at present.

Authorities In Two Virginia Cities Hold Suspects In Kansas Kidnaping

MISSOURI POLICE
SPEED EASTWARD

(International News Service)
LYNCHBURG, Va., June 19.—Two men wanted in connection with the abduction of Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of the mayor of Kansas City, are under arrest in two Virginia cities, authorities were convinced today, as Missouri officers sped eastward with descriptions furnished by the Kansas City girl. The men are Howard E. Wilson, under arrest at Lynchburg, and George McGee, held at Roanoke, sixty miles away.

The pair was apprehended late Saturday because of the suspicions of a Roanoke detective, after McGee was arrested on a charge of drunkenness. Wilson, after a rapid courtship had married Miss Frances Spencer, a Lynchburg girl, only last Friday. When police searched his home they found two submachine guns, four large calibre pistols, several hundred rounds of ammunition, three bullet proof vests and a pair of handcuffs. He did not admit any connection with the Kansas City abduction.

At Roanoke, McGee after questioning by Detective R. C. Johnson admitted complicity in the abduction.

In Texas Blast

(International News Service)
HENDERSON, Tex., June 19.—O. L. Bodenhamer of El Dorado, Ark., former national commander of the American Legion, was critically burned in an explosion on his oil lease eight miles from here today. Bodenhamer was brought to a hospital here where physicians expressed doubt of his recovery. He had gone to his lease to give an employee, R. C. Cook, instructions regarding his oil wells. He lighted a cigarette while talking to Cook and the explosion followed immediately.

Belief was expressed that gas had formed a pocket in the air. Bodenhamer was 150-yards from the nearest well.

Stock Exchange
Probe Will Come
Capital Learns

After Banking Investigation Ends, Market Will Be Scrutinized

WILL DELVE DEEP INTO STOCK BUYING

Will Determine Advisability Of Placing Market
Under Federal Control

BY WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 19.—A searching inquiry into the tremendous operations of the New York stock exchange, to determine the advisability of placing it under direct federal supervision, will follow the senate's present banking investigation, International News Service learned today.

The market inquiry will be conducted by the senate banking and currency committee, now engaged in investigating commercial and private banking. The principal purpose of the market inquiry will be to decide whether new federal safeguards should be erected to protect the American investing public, which has poured billions of dollars into the stock exchange in recent years.

Resumes Next Week.
The senate committee resumes its banking inquiry next Monday. Then it will probe financial affairs of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., with Otto Kahn on the witness stand. Later, the inquiry may be prolonged to include Dillon, Read & Co., although some members of the committee favor postponement of this phase until cooler weather.

Senator Fletcher (D) of Florida, committee chairman, revealed that the stock market would be probed before the investigation is completed. He fixed no date for the inquiry but declared it would be held and completed before congress returns to session next January. The inquiry probably will lead to some move for federal supervision of the stock exchange. Congress would have ample power to control it, thru its exclusive control of the mails and interstate communication. It could bar all news of market operation from the mails and interstate communication and it could forbid shipment of securities in interstate commerce, if its regulations were disobeyed.

Stranger Caught
In Comfort Station

Had Gained Entrance Through A Rear Window In Ladies
Department

Late Saturday night, Wm. Shulliff of the Dean Block informed the police that he had just seen a man crawl along the wall on the north side of the Neshannock Creek and gain entrance through a rear window of City Comfort station.

Officers answering the call, unlocked the door of the comfort station and found Joe Anderson, alias Caszmer Wikoski, who claimed to reside at 809 Stephen street, Pittsburgh.

In view of the circumstances under which he was arrested and the fact that the Comfort Station has been the scene of robberies on previous occasions he was sent to the county jail by Major Charles B. Mayne, pending a further investigation.

AUTO HIT AS OWNER
TURNS INTO DRIVE

B. F. Lowery of 462 Neshannock avenue, reported Sunday that he was going west on Neshannock avenue and had stopped preparatory to making a turn into his driveway, as another car coming in the opposite direction passed. As he stopped William Jack Murphy of Pittsburgh, driving the car of James E. Hagan of Pittsburgh, also enroute west, attempted to pass his machine and hit and damaged his car.

Another Argument
FOR DAYLIGHT TIME
(International News Service)
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Departing from its winter policy of allowing visitors to the Harvard University Museum, with its world-famed collection of glass flowers, only on Saturday and Sunday, the university announced that the museum would be open every day.

The explanation was that since the resumption of daylight saving time it would no longer be necessary to light the big museum just for the convenience of visitors

It would be worth far more than the proverbial penny to know just what Mrs. Jack Sharkey is thinking as she gazes at her dozing husband, seated at a New York ringside. NEW YORK, June 19.—The country has embarked on the "new deal". All the work of the last three and a half months has been in preparation for this step—a step so momentous even its sponsors will not predict the ultimate results.

Now with congress out of the way for seven months, planned economy is to be given its trial here on a national scale never attempted anywhere before, except possibly in Russia.

The American experiment differs from the Russian in that it attempts to save the machinery for capitalism. The Russian idea is to eradicate capital.

Because there is no precedent for this step, and because there is no historical yardstick that quite fits the present case, forecasting is difficult.

However, there is general agreement that for the next 12 months, whether the new deal is a permanent success or not, business will improve and higher stock and commodity prices will be seen. What happens after that no one—not even the planners themselves—will forecast.

This is when the natural forces of inflation are expected to step in and take the job off the hands of the generators of artificial inflation. The question is can the planners shut off the artificial inflation once it is started?

In the past, artificial inflation, once it has taken a firm hold, has defied regulation. But those efforts lacked the planning, central control and so-called safety checks and current program has. So the result may be different, as the sponsors claim. Time will tell.

Turpac, who is inclined to be boastful, Maug, he said, is more cautious.

The prisoners, both of whom were serving life sentences at the time of the break, were returned here Saturday following their arrest by Lakewood, O., detectives. They waived extradition.

Maug and Turpac, accompanied by two other prisoners, made their break for freedom April 27. Their companions were captured a short time later.

They will be transferred back to prison today or tomorrow, detectives said.

Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

There are still a lot of wide open spaces in Lawrence county, very wide and very open. Believe it or not, there are still roads in this county that are muddled down, or else rutted so deep that crossing through calls for a farewell service.

Plaingrove township is a beautiful township, if you want our opinion. Great expanses of farmsteads, loaded with grain and dotted here and there with herds of cattle. Big farms, cared for by real farmers, but customers, some of the roads are terrible.

Got onto a wrong road last night and as far as driving was concerned, the calendar was a month or two fast. Driving was a test for sobriety or a sample of contortionist work. The car rolled like a Conestoga wagon must have rolled crossing the plains in the old days, and all the time I was dodging ruts and mud holes I was thinking of George Montgomery.

George is one of the Plaingrove township boosters. After listening to him tell it, you get the idea that Plaingrove township is a cross between the Garden of Eden and Utopia. It may be, certainly they have some splendid farms out there, but once you're off the concrete that's different.

were clogged with fresh air seekers, with, of course, a high percentage of goods at the wheel. All along the highway it seemed to me I could see an old man with a scythe and a beard, just waiting for the harvest he seemed sure to get.

The lads of the 28th reaped over the week-end and as a reunion it was a neat package. There were men there who hadn't seen each other since they finished that 16-mile parade in Philadelphia in 1919. There were no bars or eagles around the grounds; everybody was a private.

And the reunion proved one suspicion we've harbored for a long time. Once a man learns to play a bugle, or blow it, or whatever you do to it to make it yell uncle, it never gets out of his blood.

All Saturday afternoon and evening the buglers were practicing, and some of the old-time buglers insisted upon showing their ability at triple-tonguing one of those army fish horns. Jess Wilson, who is a mail carrier in private life, insisted on showing how he did it and was challenged to play "mail call".

Sorrowfully we have to admit that he had forgotten it, or else he had a new one all his own. It might have been overlooked if he had forgotten pay call, for that didn't blow so often. Or stable call, or water call, but for a mail carrier to forget mail call is something like an army cook forgetting how to open a can of gold fish.

By Pinchot Has

Philadelphia Attorney, Says
Pinchot Was Only
Shamming Probe

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—Charles D. Asmis, Philadelphia attorney, in a statement today declared he was dismissed by Gov. Gifford Pinchot as a member of the State Securities commission because he was prepared to offer adverse testimony against the executive in the pending investigation of the commission.

"The trouble began when I took Mr. Pinchot seriously on his utility program," the statement said. "I thought he was sincere in his effort to protect investors and consumers of the light and power companies. Instead, I found him a political hypocrite, one face pointed to the public as a crusader and another face pointed to the officials under him, scolding them for taking him at his word and upholding others when they permitted utilities to foist millions of securities on the public."

"With the legislature out of the way, he became bold and by my dismissal seeks to discredit in advance the testimony of an official who found Mr. Pinchot to be a sham and a pretender in his utility program."

Three Killed By New York Gangs

Bloodiest Week-End In New York In Several Months,
Results In Three Killed

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, June 19.—The third murder within 48 hours early today climaxed one of the bloodiest week ends of crime experienced in New York for several months.

Frank Grabski, 59 year old beer garden proprietor, was the latest victim. Four gunmen invaded his place, lined up 10 patrons against the wall and ordered them to "shell out" money and valuables. Grabski protested. One of the bandits sent a bullet crashing into his head, killing him instantly, and the quartet fled.

Earlier, Thomas Heeney recognized one of three gunmen who held up a Midtown grill and it cost his life.

"Listen," Heeney told the bandit, "You can't get away with this." The invader turned, saw Heeney recognized him, clapped his gun to the victim's head and fired three times. Again the killer and his companions escaped.

Third victim of holdup men was Joseph Revellio also a cafe owner. He was killed when he pleaded with the bandits to leave the place.

Report 3,222 Families In Philadelphia No Longer Need Relief

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—The upswing of employment was reflected today in the rolls of the Philadelphia county emergency relief board with the dropping of 3,222 families who no longer need aid since the peak of last May 1.

The decrease of 4.5 per cent in the number of families receiving aid can be traced directly to the increase in employment, Miss Dorothy C. Kahn, executive director of the board, asserted.

THOUSAND AT PARK CONCERT

Hour Of Band Music At Park; Herman Hess Leads Singing

Approximately 1,000 men, women and children, of all walks of life, enjoyed the initial band concert at Cascade Park. The concert was given by the Duke of Abruzzi band, B. J. Biondi director. Herman Hess led the community singing.

The band concert started at 2:45 p. m. It was held at the bandstand, about which numerous benches had been placed. The benches were not sufficient to accommodate the music and song lovers. Many of them found seats on the grass.

With another band concert scheduled for the same time next Sunday, it is probable that even a greater crowd will be present. The program will be changed and it is probable that additional benches will be placed to accommodate the audience.
